

Consultation and Support Services For Students with Disabilities

The Student Accessibility Office

At the Student Accessibility Office trained staff versed in counseling and disability support offer consultation concerning mental health, academic life, etc., and cooperate with faculty and staff to provide support to students.

Student Accessibility Office Services and Activities

- Support for students with disabilities, academic and campus life consultation
- Collect and disseminate support information and know-how
- Improve accessibility on campus
- Promote understanding of disability and accessibility issues on campus
- Cooperate with NAIST employees and outside institutions to facilitate support

Those Eligible for Support

Students with visual, hearing, orthopedic, or other impairments, and those with disabilities stemming from developmental or psychiatric disorders

We offer consultations to students and also their guardians, supervisors, etc., so please feel free to contact the office.

For each case, the Student Disability Support Coordinator performs an initial interview session and, upon considering the student's individual needs and the specific disabilities, works with all related persons to coordinate the support of the student's studies, career development and life at NAIST.
